The delegates were very outspoken as to the Sinn Pein conspiracy, were united in their declaration that Peindal was not oppressed, was one of the finest courties in the world, and was, in fact, the spoiled child of the British Empire. They declared that fifty Protestants could not be found in Pricinsial who havored separation from the mother country.

Ireland who favored separation from the mother country.

'The Sinn Feiners were not satisfied with Home Rule or separation from the Empire unless they took. Unster with them, they declared. This they never would do. They will fight suffer, and Mr. Coote, Mr. P. for South Tyrone, said: "I will let you into a little secret. I was a battalion commander in the Ulster Volunters." Ill et you into another secret. The day that Sinn Fein invades Ulster will be a sorry day for Sinn Fein."

The Rev. Mr. Harte, of Belfast, said that "Agitators in the Ulsted States say that all Ireland wants Home states of the said of the s

WANT TO HANG ON

WANT 10 HANG ON

The members of the Union Government do not take kindly to the proposition that the Government and party should be resolved into their original constituents so as to make way or a new party and a new Government built upon their remains. They want to hang on, and the Toronto Mail and Empire frowns upon the proposal size, declaring that the Union Government is needed to stabilize conditions and fead the country through its present wicksitudes. It is agree that the country through its present wicksitudes. ilise conditions and tead the country through its present vicinitudes. It maye: "The first necessity of public policy in this country is that the Parliammentry supporters of Union Government temp together. There are more fundamental objects of public policy, but this is the primary one at the oversat time."

It was inevimble that when she viewed Haminon Geries and is activities in his own haclends, her sensitive mind should stagger a little in revolt.

Hamilton Circie had insulted her intelligence. She was constitution to the history of the control of the entire programme of German propaganda against the peace of the United States, as it was being carried on in Mexico.

She had been deceived, for a long time, because she believed so firely in the universal brotherhood, of man. She had believed with Bobby Burns, that some day, man to man the world o'er shall brothers be. By taking advantage o' few idealism, Haminton Certeis had insulted her intelligence. Many women very easily endure that insult, but Chrystobel Lorinser was not of the many. While she trusted the man as he had been so obviously devoted to him that he had caused a spell to be laid upon her.

Had she discovered the truth about him while her soul had wandered away from her body, I wondered.

To protect herself from him, and from us all, for a time, she had lapaced into silence.

"How can she be cured!" I put the question so suddenly that Jordan Spence narry lost his remarkable poise for half a minute. His answer came back so sharply that it was my turn to be in the state of the stage of t

Jordan Spence nearly lost his remarkable poise for half a minute. His answer came back so sharply that it was my turn to be startled:

"That young woman needs to fall in love—violently in love—with a real man," he said in a rather izy professional tone.

"Oh!" I gasped. And I couldn't take my eyes from Jordan Spence, although I feared that they were growing rounder and bigers as my idea grew.

"She needs a child to keep her busy," he concluded, with a meaning glance my way. Perhaps he didn't intend it to mean so much, but it seemed like a reproof to me.

"I' taid to nayed!." "And if I had a child. I wouldn't become tangled up in such an awful web of accidents and tragedies."

But, of course, I knew that children were Jordan Spence's hobby. He intended to make child surgery his life work. Gene Archer had told us one morning.

Spence had come to Mexico to study the peculiar social conditions surrounding the Mexican child.

Marital bonds are transient in Mexico, he said. More so than in any other civilized country he had ever vaisted. Owing to the high cost of the marriage ceremony, many natives dispense with it. That makes it easy for them to drop old and assume new obligations.——and yet—in few hands are little children so beloved, and on the whole, so happy. It is an extraordinary state. It might have a vast sociological significance.

"He had crossed the Rio to find out if it had—and what it might be.
